HISTORY

Begun in 1996, Broadbent Madeira was inspired by Bartholomew Broadbent's father, Michael Broadbent, who called Madeira his "desert island wine," and who played a crucial role in sourcing the wines and establishing the blends. Bartholomew Broadbent, who spent more than a decade reintroducing Madeira to the U.S. market, was determined to create a line of Madeiras to compete with the best in the world.

VITICULTURE/VINIFICATION

The soils of the island are Volcanic, with a mix of basalt, trachytes and trachydolerites, tufa, scoria and conglomerates. With its mild humidity, the island weather is classified as subtropical with variations in temperature, humidity, and rainfall according to altitude. Grapes are supplied by several winegrowers in the areas of São Jorge and Arco de São Jorge. Vines have an average age of 25 years, and are trained using the Latada vine training system. Grapes are manually harvested in September, according to ripeness. The grapes are totally destemmed, crushed and pressed. The must obtained was allowed to ferment with wild yeasts at controlled temperature of 61°F (16°C) in stainless tanks. Fermentation is stopped by addition of neutral grape spirit (96% minimum) in order to keep the desired sweetness. The wine was aged in and old American oak cask 650L in the traditional "Canteiro" system (natural oxidative process).

TASTING NOTES

Medium deep amber color with a green rim. It has a very pretty aroma with hints of vanilla. Syrupy sweet with flavors of molasses, very attractive fruit, and good acidity. Very long finish.
