HISTORY

Bartholomew Broadbent's love for Portuguese wines stems from their eminent drinkability, restrained alcohol levels and the balance which makes them versatile enough to pair with all kinds of everyday dining. Broadbent wines are friendly on the palate, yet with enough quality to please the discriminating connoisseur, at an affordable price.

VITICULTURE/VINIFICATION

A blend of the top traditional white varieties of the Dão are harvested to make Broadbent Dão White. It was an typical warm year for harvest, starting early at the end of August with little rainfall. Dry winter, warm spring with flowering at the end of May. Hot and dry summer, allowing the correct and balanced maturation of the grapes. After careful destemming and pneumatic pressing, the must, duly protected from oxidation, undergoes static decantation at a low temperature for a period of 24 hours, in order to achieve the desired degree of clarity. The different grape varieties that gave rise to this must were then vinified separately in stainless steel vats at a controlled temperature (16°C/ 60°F) for approximately 15 days.
